Life doesn't always turn out the way you plan . . . There are no guarantees in life. A moment, a chance meeting, a single decision, can change the course you've been set on. In this collection of short stories, a mountain climber teeters on the edge of danger, a fighter is pushed to his breaking point, and an amateur jockey's actions have the power to create real change, along with several other stories. Join these characters on their journeys as they experience love, struggle with loss, and seek out courage. The path that seems predetermined often twists and veers off in a new direction as they begin to open their minds and see the world in a different light.
