Embracing the future, means confronting the past. Naomi Flynn doesn't intend to mate or marry. Never again will she leave herself open to the manipulation she once endured. Besides, no panther male will want her anyway once they know the truth behind what happened a decade ago. She's happy to burn up the sheets in a buddy-with-benefits arrangement, until a hankering for a three-way sexual adventure thrusts her right back into the arms of the man she can't afford to remember. Tynan Galloway doesn't intend to watch the woman he wants throw herself at every male around, except him.

A brutal assault might have robbed him of his destiny as a protector of the pack, but damned if Naomi is going to be another casualty of his fate. When he discovers she's in potential danger, he challenges her to deny that he's the one man who can protect her...unaware that Naomi is determined to prove him wrong.
