Casualty Insurance, a seemingly respectable insurance company, has been overtaken by white collar thugs, hell bent on capitalizing on the criminal climate of Detroit in 2006. When Eva Lyons, one of their managerial employee's, unwittingly stumbles across a statistical error and points it out to her bosses, she is fired, then dies under inexplicable circumstances. Her close friend, special agent Michael Elliot is heartbroken.

But when a mysterious woman appears, claiming to be Eva's daughter, he finds himself infiltrating a world of treacherous corporate raiders, unscrupulous attorneys, seedy public officials and murderers. What did Eva discover that cost her life and threatened the lives of others? What did it have to do with the astronomical auto insurance rates in Detroit? Detroit is more than the setting for this suspense mystery and redlining is more than just a dirty insurance tactic. REDLINED is a fictional expose' of corporate corruption. A rare glimpse into what's really going on behind the closed doors of corporate America and how the rich get richer by exploiting the poor.
