A gritty thriller following the fate of a child sold into child slavery and those who risk everything to save her. Her life in tatters and emotionally scarred, Sarah Baker makes her way to Ethiopia. Her aim is to teach children fortunate than those in her classroom in London and rebuild her life. She had no idea of the danger and adventure which lay ahead. After meeting Hindi, a young girl orphaned by AIDS, they build a special bond. Always keen to learn, Hindi is guided by Sarah to study and they dream of a better future. However, after Hindi goes missing, Sarah discovers her uncle has sold her to a child trafficking gang in Addis Ababa and moved out of Africa to the Middle Eastern child slavery underworld. Teaming up with Ayo Okeke, a private investigator tormented by his own child's disappearance, Sarah sets out on a quest to find Hindi, taking them deep into the dark world of child trafficking and putting them both in danger. Can Sarah and Hindi be saved in time or will they meet a far worse fate at the hands of some of the most evil men in the Middle East?
